

BIBLIOGRAPHY: SELECTED TITLES FROM THE CHINESE COLLECTION

INTRODUCTION

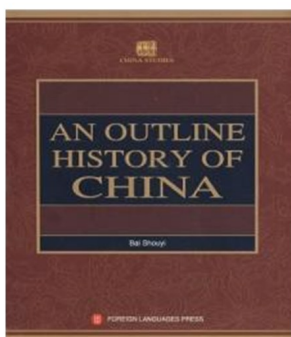

Jamaica and China officially established diplomatic relations in 1972, but the connection between the two nations dates back to the years following emancipation. After emancipation, there was a significant labour shortage on Jamaican sugar plantations. To address this, contractual workers were brought in from countries as far away as India and China.

Since those early beginnings, China has experienced significant development and so too has the relationship between our two countries. In recognition of the growing partnership, Jamaica established an embassy in China in 2005.

In recent years, Jamaica and China have collaborated beneficially in various sectors including commerce, technology, technical training, and road construction. This partnership has consistently yielded positive results. One notable example is the donation of over 200 books to the people of Jamaica. These materials, covering a range of topics about China including its culture, economy and language are housed at the Kingston and St. Andrew Parish Library, located at 2 Tom Redcam Drive, Kingston 5.

We invite you to visit the Kingston & St. Andrew Parish Library to explore these resources and expand your knowledge of China. For your convenience, a selection of titles in the collection was prepared in this bibliography. You may also consult the Jamaica Library Service Online Public Access Catalogue for other publications in the collection at www.jls.gov.jm.
